What Kind of Man. Sursum Corda.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

This country with business, commerce and engineering for principal occupations needs a man that understands those things. Herbert Hoover is a trained engineer and thorough business man. Every business man who has come in contact with the department of commerce, under Hoover, can testify to its efficiency. It touches every business interest in the United States.

IN NEW YORK Lessing Rosenwald, vice president of Sears, Roebusk & Co., said, "I went to the Argentine to see about establishing branches there. It was necessary for me to have detailed information as to est amounts. First prize will be $5 business conditions, credits, methods second prize $3 and third prize $2. *doing business, etc.

"I called at the department of com merce in charge of Secretary Hoover, and was amazed at the completeness of information open to every American business man.

Hoover understands business and this country, and as Mr. Rosenwald said, "He has earned by actual ac complishment the chance to show what he can do as president."

WEDNESDAY Woll Street decided to take the sursum corda advice and lifted up its heart and its prices. A Chicago man named Cutten, said to have eclipsed all stock operation records, has for his motto, "You must known when to leave the corpse," and he says the time "to leave" has not yet come.

SOME of the stocks that seemed to have folded their tents like the Arabs, to silently steal away, came with a bang. Gentlemen that sold Baldwin Locomotive short and saw it jump back from 238 to 260, going as high as 275, decided to wait until the boom is a little deader.

A VISITOR to the White House feeling important, said to President Coolidge: "Mr. Coolidge, I must tel you I did not vote for you." "Well," replied the president, "som Republican Nominee ierbert Hoover of California, who will carry out the licies which have brought prosperity to the country nder the administration of President Calvin Coodidge, all comers. the Republican standard bearer in the 1928 campaign. The secretary of commerce, master engineer, super rganizer, business genius and economist—the man who directed the work of the Belgin relief commission in the live years between 1914 and 1919-was given the presidential nomination on the first roll call in the party's pational convention in Kansas City last night.

Today the delegates will select Mr. Hoover's running mate. Among those mentioned for the place are: Vice President Charles G. Dawes, of Illinois; Senators Curtis of Kansas, Moses of New Hampshire; Fess of Ohio; Edge of New Jersey; Representative Tilson of Connecticut, and ex-Governor Cox of Massachusetts.

The Republican nominees will stand upon a 36-plank platform that promises a solution of the agriculture problem, pledges observance and enforcement of the Eighteenth amendment, calls for honesty in government, deceny in the conduct of political campaign, economy, further tax reduction, belief in a protective tariff, which Is so essential to the needs of the pottery industry; continuation of the efforts to maintain the present standard of living and high wage scale for labor; adequate relief for disabled war veterans; development of inland and intracoastal waterways to give the mid-west cheaper transportation to the sea for its products; maintenance of the pavy in all classes of ships to the full ratio in the Wash-Ington treaty; drafting of resources as well as citizens in times of emergency and enactment of a federal anti-

Approximately $1,000 is needed to purchase new equipment and pay the salaries of a supervisor and assistant, and if hard work on the part of 125 campaigners counts for anything the goal shall be reached.

The mounting toll of automobile accidents, due, in many cases, to the fact that children play in the streets, should be a strong argument in support of the recreation center at Second and Washington streets. Bankers' Scholarships Anxious to do everything possible for the devolpment of a more thorough knowledge of banking, and in order to supply special talent to the important field of practical commercial economics, the American Bankers' Assoation Educational Foundation has made arrangement to provide 167 loan scholarships in American colleges and universities.

Of that number, 98 are offered at the present time, and will be awarded during the forthcoming summer, while the remainder will be made ready for 1929. Thus far it has been arranged that these scholarships shall include 71 educational institutions.

In 1925 the foundation of half a million dollars was established as the Bankers' association golden anniversary memorial. Since that time the fund has been increased, additions are certain in the years ahead, and the plan is to have not fewer than 200 students benefit- two dollars, and that sum is looked forward to by the ing from the loans each year.

These scholarships are not awarded for purpose of general education. The entire movement is for the training of men and women for special service and leadership in the fields of banking and finance. As America goes on developing there will be increasing need for special talent in this field, especially as it concerns itself with world banking and international finance.

The foundation plan is to provide the talent and have it in readiness for this important service in the near future. Thus has been opened a fruitful field for men and women with a leaning toward financial practice, who are willing to devote some years to the business of fitting themselves to wear the chevrons of leadership in one of the most important spheres of human activity.

Epic Hop to Australia

From Oakland, Cal., to Brisbane, Australia, by airplane in three jumps is a feat unparalleled in aviation history. Ships have flown to Hawaii, and ships have spanned the Atlantic in each direction. From Oakland to the Hawaii Islands, from Hawaii to the Fiji Islands, and from the Fijis to Brisbane-chartless sea most of the way, a most dangerous adventure at any season of the year-yet the Southern Cross winged its way with the ease of a huge bird, and with no mechanical difficulties vhatsoever. That was an epic flight, if ever there was one.

This Pacific flight is an immease step forward for long-distance travel by heavier-than-air machines. It is conclusive proof that the feat is possible, if the proper attention is paid to calculations before the takeoff-and these calculations include weather, gasoline supply and other material aids. At no time, more than a few minutes during the flight, was the Southern Cross out of touch with the mainland, either in the United States, Hawaii or Australia. Radio kept the occupants of the tri-motored ship in communication with friends ashore, and despite ter-1.fic battles with the elements-seemingly the storm gods were bent upon disrupting the flight—the Southern Cross not only "talked" with the folks down below, but outrode the most frightful of storms.

HASKIN DAILY LETTER

By Frederick J. Haskin

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 15 .- Texas, always the iggest spot on the map of the United States, was placed on the political map in a large way when the Demo crats of that state grabbed off the national convention of their party for 1928. Of greater importance, however, and probably the real objective of the Texans is the interest through out the nation they have centered in their state.

Many people are learning the concrete facts of Texas' greatness and her commercial, industrial, and agriculural progress that otherwise would never have been his home. mpressed upon them, and already there is talk of a Texas boom comparable to those which Florida and Cali-fornia have experienced. Texans are not keen about naving exactly the kind of a boom that Florida had, but they are no means averse to the suggestion that their state is due for a big influx of people from the north and east. On the contrary, they are quite willing to have it known that their hospitality is as unbounded as their domain and that they have abundant room for

Just how much room they have may be understood when they point out that if Texas were as densely popuated as one of the New England states, Massachusetts they would have a population considerably greater than the present population of the entire United States, or approximately 130,000,000.

Approximately 16,000,000 head of livestock are to be found on Texas ranches and farms. Last year 1,500,000 cars of freight originated in Texas, and the railroads hauled almost 3,500,000 cars of freight across the state Few people would think of Texas as a manufacturing state, but nevertheless its gross manufactured products for 1927 exceeded in value 1150 millions of dollars and Texans insist that is but a promise of the showing they will make in a few years.

An industry that is being rapidly developed is the tex tile industry. Cotton is the big crop in Texas and it is but logical that the state should have the mills to trans form the raw material into the marketable finished pro duct. There have been years when the Texas cotton crop amounted to more than 40 per cent of the total production in the United States, and in the record year, 1926, the crop totaled 5,630,831, 500-pound bales. Production per acre has fallen off, due largely to the ray ages of the boll weevil, but by planting more land the total crop has been increased. In the last six years the cotton acreage has been increased by about 5,500,000

In building up a cotton manufacturing industry Texans claim to have three of the vital factors in the successful operation of the mills-an abundance of cheap labor, plenty of fuel for power, and the raw material immediately available. With those advantages they be lieve the industry should thrive.

Over-production of cotton will hit and hurt Texas just s it does all the cotton-raising states, but the big state s fortunate in that it has so much other mineral and crop wealth to fall back upon. Already the yearly mineral production of the state, exclusive of oil and gas, is valned at 70 millions. Last year Texas produced more oil than was produced in the entire United States in any year prior to 1912-almost 214,000,000 barrels, or more than one-sixth the total world production.

Potash is a mineral of which there are great expectations in Texas. Should they be realized, no foreign potash trust will be able to sand-1:g the farmers of the United States. Of natural gas the supply is that of nature in her most lavish mood.

Beef cattle once made Texas and Texans rich, and while the longhorn no longer ranges there, the state is still the biggest natural cow pasture in the United States, with millions of bigger and better cattle, and no Ameri can need worry about where his next steak or roast of beef is coming from as long as Texas finds cattle rais

And Texas does not set store alone by material wealth and prospects. When the state came into the Union it retained title to its public lands. Half of the public donain went to schools. A state university was endowed with 2,000,000 acres-not such a rich endowment at the outset, but oil has been discovered on that land and the university is now one of the richest in the country The state supports almost a thousand newspapers and magazines, too, which is a recognized evidence of an en ightened and progressive population.

Q. In going to Europe, what tips are expected on ship-

A. The World Traveler says that usual table steward now expects at least five dollars for his services during the voyage, as does the bedroom steward. On some of the older and smaller liners, either may be satisfied with three dollars. The deck steward is apt to expect steward of the smoking room. The bathroom steward ex pects a similar sum, and the man who takes care of one's boots expects a dollar. If there is a woman passenger in one's party, the room stewardess expects a fee of five dollars for the voyage, though on a less fashion able liner she might be content with three dollars. However, the experienced traveler is usually guided by his opinion of the quality of service rendered him and by the demands he makes upon the steward's time.

Business Ability. Perhaps the greatest demonstration of his superlative business ability at least so far as the whole world is REAL ORGANIZER concerned—was the organization of the Commission for Relief in Belgium. Returns to U. S. In 1917, Hoover returned to the United States to apply the same food conservation fundamentals to the American nation that it might better prosecute its own end of the war. As National Food Administrator under Woodrow Wilson, he appealed to the national spirit of voluntary service, establishing meatless and sugarless days in each week. While he was teaching prodigal America to be careful with its foodstuffs, he found time to organize a $500,000,000 U. S. Grain corporation to purchase foodstuffs and resell them to the Allies, and a $5,000,000 Sugar Equilization board to purchase the entire Cuban sugar crop and resell it to the Allies without speculation.

And after the war, at the solicitation of President Wilson, Hoover re-turned to Europe to aid in rehabilitating the war-wrecked nations. He revived his food distribution in Poland, Serbia, Czechoslovakia, Ger-many, Austria, Roumania, the Baltic states and Belgium. Giving particular attention to the little ones, he fed 2,500, 0 children. Some 6,000,000 more were housed in asylums, home and canteens and provided with food and medical treatment. He waged winning campaigns against the epidemics of typhus, typhoid, smallpox, cholera and malaria fever which spread over Russia and the Baltics.

Work During War. It was this extraordinary war work that first put him forward as a presidential candidate. This was in 1920. Many Republicans as well as Demo crats supported him for the presidency-in fact he carried the Mich!gan primary as a Democrat! Hoover wasn't sure himself what his politics were, Republican or Democratic. He had spent long years away from the

He was inclined to lean toward the Democrats because he was, in effect, part of the Wilson administration as food administrator, but his own background and inherent inclinations were Republican. He finally killed his own chances and took himself out of sonsideration in 1920, although, at that, he received votes in the Chicago convention.

When Warren G. Harding was elected he determined to put Hoover in his cabinet, and did so, although there was some grumbling on the part of the department of commerce, which up to that time had never been regarded as a very important cabinet post. However, Hoover had his own ideas as to what the department could be made, and he proceeded to put them into operation. Today, the department has its own foreign service, it annually answers millions of inquiries from American business men, it is an almost unbelievable respository for statistics of all kinds, it has taken the lead in establishing standard trade practices, it has rendered efficiency expert service to American industry in all lines, cut down waste in manufacturing, and, in short, developed a gigantic business-engineer operating in the name of the government.

Born in lowa.

Hoover was born in West Branch, Iowa, August 10, 1874. His mother, a Quaker preacher, died when he was four, and his father, a black-smith, died three years later. The Hoover family thereupon split up and the children were sent to live with various relatives. Young Herbert went to live with an old friend of the family whom the children had always called "grandfather."

At the age of 13, however, he was tired of the restrictions placed on him and ran away to Oregon. He first earned a living working in truck gar-dens outside of Portland, later getting a job as office boy in Salem, and finally returning to Portland to work in a real estate office. The exploits of John Hays Hammond, world-famous engineer, at that time were getting much publicity, and young Hoover established the noted mining expert as his ideal. He engaged in work in mines, railways and metal-lic works amid surroundings fraught with danger and excitement.

Went to China. Hoover was in Tientsin, China, when the Boxer uprising broke out in 1900. When the foreign settlement was attacked, he and his assistants mobilized a force of pro-foreign and Christian Chinese and set up a defense. For over a month, the settlement was under constant bombardment and rifle fire and hundreds were killed and wounded. Hoover person ally manned a machine gun and led the defense. When Your Mirror And Purse Agree

The woman who shops for summer clothes with one eye on her pocketbook, and the other on her mirror, is often in a quandary. Mirrors can be so tempting at times, and pocketbooks so stern.

One of the pleasantest ways we know to economize is by making your own sport frocks from ginghams and percales, that is, if they're the kind that can jump into the weekly wash tub and come out smiling. A faded gingham is a tragedy.

We never offer such un-satisfactory materials to our customers. Your mirror would rebel, and only when pocketbooks and mirrors agree perfectly about a pur-chase are we quite satisfied.

LOWDEN'S VALEDICTORY CLIMAX OF FIGHT IN CONVENTION

FARM FORCES' LEADER QUITS BALLOT BATTLE

Withdraws His Name From Contest for Nomination.

HITS PLATFORM

in Keeping With His Views.

By GEORGE R. HOLMES.

KANSAS CITY, June 13 .- The new dynasty of Republican leaders who have taken hold of the Republican party were endeavoring today to pick a running mate for Herbert Hoover.

But the question that is really wor-L. Lowden's bitter valedictory to his party will have on Republican chances for success in November—if any.

Lowden's letter to the Republican name, was the climax to the unsucnational convention withdrawing his cessful fight which the loosely knit farm organizations have waged in and out of the convention to secure what they characterized as their "rights." Lowden was their champion.

Nominated Four Years Ago. Eight years ago, Frank O. Lowden would have been nominated for the presidency but for what the politicians call "an unfortunate break." Four years ago he was nominated for the vice presidency by the unanimous vote of the Cleveland convention only to turn it down later. Yet, with his record of more than 40 years of Republican regularity, Lowden sent this measure to the Republican national convention last night that was in the whooping process of nominating Hoover; "I have stated publicly that I do not

"I have waited upon no particular remedy but I have stated at all times that if there was a better method than the so-called equalization fee I would gladly accept it. I have urged, how-ever, that it is the duty of the Republican party to find some way to res cue agriculture from the ruin that threatens it.

This, in my judgment, the committee by its platform just adopted has failed to do.

"I, therefore, authorize the with-

Two Views of Action. It was noted that Gov. Lowden did not say that it was the Republican cause in which his interest was "in no way abated." The inference was left that his future interset, and more particularly his interest so far as the forthcoming election is concerned, centers around the agricultural "cause" rather than with the cause by party leaders in Kansas City to McCutcheon, Troop No. 12. that Gov. You have manifested a deep concern in the problems of agriculture. You have pledged the party to support specific and conservative relief upon a nation wide scale backed by the re sources of the federal government. We will and must find a solution that will bring security and contentment to this great section of our people.

"But the problems of the next four years are more than economic. In a profound sense, they are moral and spiritual. This convention has sounded a note of moral leadership.

Militant Agrarians Will Carry Fight to Houston.

RANKS THINNING

Doubt if Gov. Al Smith Would Favor Proposal.

By WILLIAM S. NEAL. KANSAS CITY, June 15 .- Militant leaders of the farmers' crusade-still full of fight despite their defeat here -today planned to carry the famous McNary-Haugen bill to Houston.

The same platorm plank which was overwhelmingly rejected by the Re-publican convention, will be dangled before the eyes of the Democratswith a promise that it will be a rich prize on election day.

Informal conferences were held to map out the strategy for the march southward. All of the arguments of economic advantage for the farmers and political gain for the Democrats will be carried to the southward, the farm leaders declared.

Not all of those who stormed the Republican ramparts with a demand that President Coolidge and his veto of the McNary-Haugen bill be repudlated, will be found in the councils of the Democrats, a canvas revealed. Plan To Continue Fight.

While displaying a deep disappoint ment at the outcome of their efforts in Kansas City some farm leaders indicated that they would continue their fight within the Republican party.

The more militant—including William Hirth of Missouri, chairman of the Corn Belt committee, and William H. Settle, president of the Indiana Farm Federation-declared that the Democrats would not only accept the farm plank, but would beat Hoover with it.

Others expressed doubt that Governor Al Smith of New York, if the Democratic nominee, would favor the bill either as an economic or politi-cal aid. Belief was expressed that he would see in it a blow at the consuming masses of the east who buy the farmers' products.

"We are going to Houston and if the Democrats adopt the farm plank they'll get our votes," declared Settle, "When the two conventions are over there will be a big meeting, probably in Des Moines, to decide the conference and a Republican delegate, declined to predict the political outcome of the farm fight. He will not go to Houston, he said. "I can only say that the farmers will regard the convention attitude as meaning that they will not be brought within the protective tariff system," said Murphy. Governor Adam McMullen of Nebraska, who suggested the "march of 100,000," farmers on Kansas City,

"I think that we made a splendid fight here for farm equality and we are sure to get it in the near future," said Woods. "As far as I am concerned, I expect to get it in the Republican party."

D UT this away—it sounds like a miracie! A year ago the Cin-cinnati Reds were the more or less permanent occupants of the National league cellar with 14 games won and 32 lost. Today they're out in front of the pack, playing baseball and being touted to grab the pennant. Old Jack Hendricks is largely responsible. If you know your base-ball, you don't need to be told that Hendricks, who has more silver in his hair than you will find in them than hills, is bossing the team that is causing all the hysteria at the present

Hendricks has been around a long time and knows a lot about human nature and left-handers, so probably it isn't very surprising to him to find that he is the object of unusual attention by the newspaper boys, whereas a year ago nobody gave him so much as a tumble. The truth is he didn't need one; he had tumbled all the way from the top of the league to the bottom and for a time it looked like he might tumble right out of Cincinnati on his ear. That's how fervant had become the yelp of the wolf pack.

Now, like life in the South seas, all has changed. Hendricks' Redlegs are out there in front and fighting like a brigade of marines. And because it's always something of a phenomenon when a baseball club is gal vanized into a winner after a long losing streak, the gentlemen of the sporting pages called upon old Jack and inquired the secret of his rejuxe nated ball tossers.

"The answer is, "Handricks explained, gravely, "we are playing winning baseball." The simplicity of it staggered the reporters. "Don't kid us," they ex-claimed. "It's a trick. You do it with mirrors or something." The Red leader possesses the fine tolerance and patience typical of the Beckett and Gerace; C. Laneve and matured soul and he proceeded to demonstrate it.

"Just go out and get more than the other fellow. That's all you have to do. That's what we are doing and have been doing since the race start So far as Hendricks is concerned his Reds just happened to be up there today-and that's all there is to it. The nearest to a prediction that old Jack will hazard is that he "reckons they'll get to going good by the time October rolls around. And thats that he young man was reduced to grovelsubmission forthwith.

Irish race tracks will have totalistors, the new Austrailian method of bookkeeping for bets.

His subsequent behavior has been exemplary, they say, which made it inexpedient for Donnie Bush, manager of the ball club, to admit that such a situation ever had arisen in the first place. Nor was it necessary for Bush to admit that Wright was not to be traded to the Chicago Cubs by midnight, as ellegations would have it. Joe McCarthy is not giving away infielders these days and I don't blame him a bit, either. Nobody will take the kind he had.

The Wright business came to a head today largely because trades will be taboo by midnight when the major league deadline for the season becomes effective. The fact has led to all kinds of undercover activities in-cluding the placing of Virgil Barnes on the counter by the Giants and the prospect of trades developing be-tween the Pirates and Phillies and the Cardinals and Praves.

After being deadlocked at 5-all for ment, Superintendents finally won a 6-5 victory last night, when Cloran singled in the twelfth, driving in Munns who had reached second on a fielder's choice. > SMART AND INTERESTING An effective new drape treatment is noted in simple frock for general daytime wear, interpreted in silk crepe printed in novel design with plain crepe trimming. It's smart! The easy manner in which it is made is most interesting, for drape cuts in one with right front section. Tucks at shoulders are decorative and add sufficient fulness to bodice. The collarless neckline is piped with the plain crepe. Chiffon, georgette crepe, crepe satin, canton-faille crepe, chiffon voile and rayon crepe also adaptable. Style No. 3322 comes in sizes 16, 18 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches The 36-inch size takes 31/2 yards of 40-inch material with 3/8 yard

VOICE CULTURE IS MOVIE NEED

CHICAGO.—The talking movie is doing away with the beautiful but dumb screen queen.

It likewise will cause cinema followers a great deal of disillusionment, according to C. C. Petijohn, counsel at New York for the Central board of trade. Pettijohn made the prediction recenly on a visit to

Suppose you suddenly discovered that

1. Mary Pickford whispered in basso profundo? 2. That Wallace Beery had a tenor voice.

3. That Jackie Coogan speaks with an Irish brogue? It may not be so astounding as that, Mr. Pettijohn indicated, but it will be bad enough.

Recoginizing their peril, Mr. Pettijohn said, nearly all the film stars are studying voice culture. "Talking moving pictures will revolutionize the business," he de-

His potrayal of this difficult role is a highly commendable expression of dramatic art. Roland Drew, in the part of "Don Felipe," a young Spanish gentleman of wealth, gives a splendid performance that is human and sympathetic. Vera Lewis is the sinister menace of the story. In her dramatic scenes with Miss Del Rio, she makes Senora Moreno a grim

DOLORES COSTELLO IN CERAMIC HIT

Dolores Costello, always exquisitely lovely, in the underworld melodrama, "Tenderloin," now at the Ceramic theatre, has the added attraction of portraying beauty in distress. She is Rose Shannon, dancer at Kelly's Bowery Cafe, where among all the hang-erson, her heart goes out to one Chuck White, swaggering young roughneck, who is a member of a gang of rob-

Chuck thinks of Rose as just another "skirt," and only when she is taken by the police as an alleged accomplice in a bank robbery in which he himself is implicated, does he begin to recognize the true worth of the little colleen. Though tortured by the "third degree" she refused to "squeal" on the gang.

Chuck pretends interest in her health to spirit her away to the country, to really try her loyalty, but finds himself falling under the spell of her charm. The thugs follow, believing Chuck to have proven himself a "rat." Many hair-raising adventures follow. during which the lovers fight their way clear of the shadows of the city, and find in the country a "blue beav-

Amazing judgment has been shown in the choice of the old-timers who play the hard-boiled or amusing character parts. Michael Curtiz, of all for-eign directors the most successful in combining European experience with the American point of view, has done an enviable piece of work in directing "Tenderloin." Acids In Stomach Cause Indigestion

Create Sourness, Gas and Pain. How To Treat.

Medical authorities state that nearly nine tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disa-greeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestants are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist some Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful of powder or four tablets in water right after eating. This sweet-ens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form-never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of mag nesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indi

2,000,000 Plan Vacation Trips To New England

BOSTON .- Two millions of fathers, mothers, children and sweethearts will visit the mountains, lakes, seashores and historic spots of New England this summer and will spend over $150,000,000 in this section, according to estimates made by the National Touring Bureau of the American Automobile Association,

The estimates are based on a careful study of 1927 figures, with an allowance of 10 per cent increase for this year, which is approximately the normal growth in motor touring, according to the association.

Launching of the "Ten-way Program" by twenty A. A. A. Motor Clubs in New England and intensified development of motoring services in this area have already exercised a pronounced effect on the stimulation of motor tourists interests in New England, according to the association.

The Constant Flame

Narrative of Love and Struggle Against Temptations By WINIFRED VAN DUZER

"Because a man has decent manners doesnt mean he'l be imposed on."

His voice was edged now. "I don't mind your playing Around, Em. He's harmless enough. But don't forget I'm taking good care of what's mine!"

He had an odd ability to make her angry. "Go away! she flung at him. "Go out and find Anne. She seems to like you!'

"Jealous! That's great!" And he went out, laughing. He came late one evening and threw himself into the porch swing. "I passed the exams, Em. I'm a lawyer

"Why, that's wonderful, Marty. Doing it all yourself -a splendid thing."

"Said I'd show them." He was leaving for the Middle West, he told her. Job all ready when he came back.

"You won't have your private office? I thought law yers always wanted to start in for themselves," she said, thinking of what Kent had told her long ago.
"That's uphill. It's better to go in with the right crowd. The Judge is the one for me."

She looked at him quickly, kindling with astonish-"The Judge? You're going to work for Judge Morrow?"

"With him," rather haughtily. "That surprise you, Em? Why?"

She didn't know exactly. She believed now that Morrow controlled politics in the county and perhaps in a section of the state. Frances had told her this in a curt, disgusted tone. Boss Morrow . .

Probably he thought Marty a bright young fellow, as indeed he was, and wished new blood in his office. Red blood. Or perhaps Anne had asked her father to make a place for him.

Judge Morrow was fond of his daughter, everybody His one weakness, it was.

Had Marty understood that and deliberately become friends with Anne because of it? Would any man use a girl's interest in him to further his way toward success?

She had been rather proud of Marty once. She had seen him as one climbing above every sort of obstacle toward high achievement, one growing great and honorable as he fought upward.

This vision of him wa ered and dimmed now; she felt rather weary and rather resentful, as if she had been defrauded.

"Don't see why you're so surprised. I'm not exactly a liability, you know." "Of course not, Marty. I'm sure you'll be a success." She resolved to give him the benefit of the doubt. She had no right to judge him. Perhaps, after all, Anne had sought him instead of it being the other way about.

laughing. She expected an emphatic denial but he made no reply. She didn't know, of course, that old Tir had said the same thing a few bours before.

"They'll say you're in the party machine," she told him,

"So ye'll be steppin' wit' the gang, me lad? Think ye've got the world b' the leg but better not forget till keep an eye out. They're slick."

Marty had nodded and locked his gaze with the old blue one. "I'll not forget."

Emily walked with him down the steps. "Good luck Marty. I'll be wishing it for you."

He crushed her hand and would have drawn her to him but she moved back. He hestitated a moment, head down; then he went away slowly down the street.

Afterward she remembered it was the first time in months he had said nothing about his intention of marry ing her some day.

CHAPTER 32.

A week or so later Emily put a new clipping into the

The Lyall Star printed a picture of Kent; a blurred and unflattered likeness which didn't look much like anyone, really.

But she thought it marvelous; with a warm, gentle flush gliding over her she studied the features—the proud tilt to the head, the frank young eyes, the beautifully chiseled lips. Rather grave they were in the pic ture; not laughing as in the old days. The story said Kent had come home to live after years at school and abroad. He had passed his bar examinations with honors and expected to open an office in Lyall. So Anne didn't know after all, Emily told herself exultantly. He was coming back-coming here to liveto open an office like any young country lawyer, trying to work his way up. Different from Marty who wished to "play with the right crowd."

Oh, he'd succeed! So brave, so very fine! She was enormously roud of him.

And she wa: in an ecstasy the next day when the Item printed a half page editorial suggesting Mr. Kent Rossiter for district attorney. "What we need," ran the article, "is someone with the courage to defy boss rule in this county. A man of sincere purpose and unquestioned integrity; a crusader. "The name of Rossiter always has stood for honor in this community. "That he is young-barely twenty-five-is no argument against his ability. "This newspaper, 1 accordance with its policy of fair play, submits to the voters the name of Kent Rossiter for the office of Distri t Attorney at the fall elections."

A crude piece of writing it was but it might have been done in fire so brilliant did it seem to Emily. She bought the newspaper at noon and carried it back to the shop, folding it so the article was on the outside. And whenever she had an idle moment she would read it, always with a new thrill. Once, glancing up, she caw a man who sometimes went into Judge Merrow's office standing with a newspaper in his hand. His hat was on the back of his head and he scowled. She could see the headlines and knew he was reading the editorial about Kent. Suddenly the man jerkel his shoulders and pushed his hat still farther back. She got the impression that he was very angry and wondered it Boss Morrow would mird if Kent was district attorney. The man dashed up the stairs and she watched him. through the window, enter Morrow's office and put the paper on the desk. Another man stepped forward and the three read together. They talked afterward and she speculated upon what they were saying. Had she heard she would not have understood. When the first man shook his finger under the Judge's nose he was blustering, "You're back of this, Morrow. The three eyed each other and the one who had been in the office inquired, more mildly, "What's the dope?"

The first exploded. "Can't you read? Ask him what's the dope!" Thrusting his chin toward the Judge. Morrow was quiet though a purple shadow crept up his jowls. "You know what it's about. If you hadn't pulled that raw stuff on those bridge contracts! Whole county's one grand squawk. "Think I'd throw th' his way if he wasn't a half baked parlor pup? Know the name, don't you? Think it'll muffle the public yip for 'pure politics'?

"Supposing you highbinders look around the end of your ugly noses for once. Now get out; I'm busy.' Emily saw the two come down the stairs and walk away up the street together, red and silent.

When she started for home the lemon-colored roadster that used to come tearing up the hill and stop noisily before the Brents' was parked at the corner. Stella, looking oddly little and frightened, was in a corner of the

Emily crossed to her gaily. "Skeets taking you out dear?" "Just a ride up the river. Grand day for that." Stella laughed uneasily.

Emily stood by, embarrassed, trying to think of some thing to say. When Skeets came, finally, he put some thing in the back of the car. It was then Emily caught sight of two bass tucked away under the cover; a small one half co ered with labels; the other new and such a gaudy bag as Stella would buy.
